

ABSTRACT

The invention relates to a windshield wiper device, in particular for a motor vehicle, comprising a carrier (12) for fixing to a first part (54), especially to the body of the motor vehicle. A locking element (40) having a predetermined breaking point (41) is also provided in order to enable the carrier (12) to be fixed to the first part (54) by means of a rotational connection.